

The image displays a collection of six hand-drawn study cards, likely for a Business Economics exam. The cards are arranged in a grid-like fashion, with some overlapping. Each card features a title, a definition or explanation, and a list of key concepts or formulas. The cards are color-coded with yellow and blue highlights.

- Card 1 (Top Left): Titled "Brain & life", it discusses the relationship between the brain and life, mentioning "The brain is the most important organ of the human body" and "The brain is the center of the nervous system". It includes a diagram of the brain and a list of key concepts: "The brain is the most important organ of the human body", "The brain is the center of the nervous system", "The brain is the most important organ of the human body", "The brain is the center of the nervous system".
- Card 2 (Top Middle): Titled "The firm", it defines a firm as "A legal entity that produces goods and services for sale". It includes a diagram of a firm and a list of key concepts: "A legal entity that produces goods and services for sale", "A legal entity that produces goods and services for sale", "A legal entity that produces goods and services for sale", "A legal entity that produces goods and services for sale".
- Card 3 (Top Right): Titled "The market", it defines a market as "A place where buyers and sellers meet to trade goods and services". It includes a diagram of a market and a list of key concepts: "A place where buyers and sellers meet to trade goods and services", "A place where buyers and sellers meet to trade goods and services", "A place where buyers and sellers meet to trade goods and services", "A place where buyers and sellers meet to trade goods and services".
- Card 4 (Bottom Left): Titled "The firm's production function", it defines a production function as "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the output produced". It includes a diagram of a production function and a list of key concepts: "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the output produced", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the output produced", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the output produced", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the output produced".
- Card 5 (Bottom Middle): Titled "The firm's cost function", it defines a cost function as "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the total cost of production". It includes a diagram of a cost function and a list of key concepts: "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the total cost of production", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the total cost of production", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the total cost of production", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the total cost of production".
- Card 6 (Bottom Right): Titled "The firm's profit function", it defines a profit function as "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the profit of the firm". It includes a diagram of a profit function and a list of key concepts: "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the profit of the firm", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the profit of the firm", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the profit of the firm", "A relationship between the inputs used in production and the profit of the firm".